Home+Garden

PHOTOS BY ADAM HEYMAN

Jim Olson turned his Mountain View apartment courtyard into a villa, filled with plants and works of art, including some of his own creations. Olson has redesigned the courtyard several times over the years, and continues to make changes all the time.

The art-lover's garden

By Don Frances

On paper at least, Mountain View sculptor, designer and painter Jim Olson might seem to have enough creative outlets. But that doesn't stop him from pouring his heart into his garden.

"It's not just a garden, it's a gallery, an outdoor gallery," he said.

Olson, who has lived and worked in Mountain View for decades, owns a seven-unit building near Miramonte Avenue, close to the Los Altos border. He occupies one of the units, and maintains a studio there.

When a professional artist lavishes attention on a garden for so long — he's owned the building for 42 years — the results can be irresistible. In fact, Olson says, passersby are sometimes a bit too quick to make themselves at home.

"People are curious," he said, explaining why he'd rather not publish the address. "It's not that I'm trying to be reclusive or anything."

Once, Olson said, he entered the garden to find a woman he didn't know sitting there.

"I said, 'Can I help you? Are you looking for somebody that lives here?' She said, 'Oh no, I just come here all the time.'"

Olson also referred to his outdoor getaway as a "sculpture garden."

"The metal sculpture," he said, "was done by Victor Arbogast, who lived in Mountain View for a long time. When he moved to Arizona I bought his collection.

"The terra cotta pieces," he added, "were done by me."

It's love, not money, that makes a garden great, Olson said.

"This isn't something that costs a fortune. It's something that anybody can do with enough time and effort — and really enjoy it." ■

Never too late to go green

ENVIRO-FRIENDLY ADD-ONS A BENEFIT, EVEN IF THE REST OF YOUR HOME IS NOT

By Forrest Linebarger

Q: I was thinking about building an addition to my home using green building methods, but I'm not sure if it's worth bothering since the rest of my house is decidedly not green. Will I get any benefit from a green addition?

— Tabitha in Mountain View

A: Don't be discouraged from green building because of your past actions or, more likely, the actions of a predecessor. There comes a time when everyone has the opportunity to leave one path and choose a new and better path. Congratulations on wanting to choose a green path. Don't let the first steps discourage you.

Green building, even for an addition, will reap rewards for you and your family. If you chose to build green, you will undoubtedly reduce the off gassing of volatile organic chemicals (VOCs). VOCs are noxious solvents that evaporate into the air from such common building products as adhesives, plastics — including most carpets — and paints.

VOCs are released in the heaviest concentrations after installation and

SUMMER DAYS INSPIRE FRESH FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS

By Jill Slater

There's nothing better than summer days filled with sun, surf and sand. And, it's easy to turn your home into a beach resort with these "sensational" arrangements created with just a few fresh-cut flowers.

Using beach-like elements, these beachy bouquets bring the seaside inside or to your own back yard.

Sensational sandbox

Materials:

10-inch x 13-inch x 2.5-inch deep shadow box picture frame
9 short water tubes
3 red, 3 orange and 3 yellow gerbera daisies
Play sand, enough to fill the shadow box
Floral clippers and preservative

Directions:

- Take the shadow box apart, but leave the back on.
- Fill the shadow box full of sand.
- Fill the water tubes with water that has been treated with floral preservative.
- Cut the flowers to fit inside the water tubes. Insert the water tubes deeply into the sand. Space them evenly and alternate the colors.

Note: The shadow box gets heavy with sand, so when carrying it to its resting spot, support the back of it with your hands.

Ikebana

Ikebana is the Japanese art of flower arranging. While you are not making a true Ikebana display, the principles of the technique are at work — that is, simple styling with emphasis on each individual flower.

Materials:

Long tray, approximately 20-inches long by 6- to 8-inches wide
3 floral pin frogs about 1-inch in diameter
Floral clay
Two 4-inch diameter ceramic saucers
1 large conch shell
3 plastic or metal napkin rings
1 handful of small pebbles/rocks
3 stems white iris
3 stems white freesia
1 stem Casablanca lily or white Asiatic lily
1 stem umbrella grass
4 to 5 stems baregrass
Floral clippers and preservative

Directions:

- Place floral clay on the bottom of each pin frog. Place the pin frogs in the center of the two saucers and in the mouth of the conch shell.
- Place the napkin holders over the frogs. Now use the small pebbles just inside the napkin rings to help hide the frogs.

reduce as years pass. Clearly you will get a disproportionate benefit in the indoor air quality of your home by going green on your addition, since this will probably otherwise be the largest source of VOCs in you remodeled home.

Your green addition will also be more comfortable than other areas of the house because green construction focuses on using energy-efficient elements. When the rest of the house gets too hot or too cold, you may find refuge in your green addition.

You should also expect monthly costs savings on your PG&E bill. This monthly reward will be a constant reminder that you made the right choice.

Q: My house gets so warm in the summer, is there anything I can do to keep it cool besides adding an energy-hogging air conditioner?

A: There are a host of things that can increase the comfort of your home during the heat of summer; let me cover a few of the most important.

Check the insulation in your ceiling. You can do this by opening the attic access and looking into your attic with a flashlight and a tape measure. You should have nine or more inches of insulation. If there is less, consider having insulation installed.

Insulation is inexpensive and extremely important. Bonus points for utilizing insulation with a high recycled content.

You may also want to check to see if your windows and glass doors are single pane. A simple test for this is to put a finger on each side of the glass and see how far apart your fingers are. If your fingers are about an eighth of an inch or so apart, you have single-pane glass. If your fingers are about three quarters of an inch apart, you have double-pane glass.

Heat transfers very quickly through single-pane glass, and a house with single-pane windows will heat up much more quickly during the summer.

Both insulation and high quality windows will not only make your home cooler in the summer, they will make your home warmer in the winter and reduce energy costs.

Another nice option is to install a whole-house fan. A whole-house fan changes the air in the house very quickly. If you are finding your house stays warm after the outside air begins to cool down, this might be a good choice. Whole-house fans are very helpful in Mediterranean climates such as the Bay Area, as they will rapidly bring the temperature in the house down in the late afternoon, bringing cool relief. ▣

- Set the two saucers into the tray, one in the center and one on either side of the center saucer. Place the conch shell at the other end of the tray.
- Carefully pour water that has been treated with floral preservative into each saucer and the conch shell.
- Cut three stems of freesia about 6-inches in length. Insert the freesia into the center saucer. The freesia blooms should face outward.
- Cut one stem of iris about 10 inches in length, cut another iris stem about 7 inches in length and cut the third stem to about 4 or 5 inches in length.
- Insert the stems into the other saucer. Insert the baregrass around the iris.
- Finally cut the bloom of the lily and the umbrella grass to about 2 or 3 inches in length and insert into the conch shell.

JILL SLATER

A large conch shell is home to more than just sea creatures: A fresh-cut Casablanca lily is nestled in its opening. Other breezy beauties include white iris and fragrant white freesia.

Floral clippers and preservative

Directions:

- Fill the votives with sand.
- Fill the water tubes with water that has been treated with floral preservative.
- Cut the iris short and insert one stem into each of the water tubes.
- Insert one iris with water tube into each sand-filled votive.
- Set the votives on shelves or line them up on a table or bookshelf.

Sand and stems

Materials:

- 3 over-sized clear glass votive cups
- 3 stems blue iris
- 3 water tubes
- Play sand, enough to fill the votives

Do you sweat too much?

You may be one of the nearly 8 million Americans who suffers from hyperhidrosis, excessive sweating of the underarms, hands or feet.

Please call for a free brochure or more information 650.988.7557

Hyperhidrosis of the underarms can be treated with OTC antiperspirants or we can provide a more potent prescription antiperspirant with special instructions. If that treatment is unsuccessful, Botox® can be a safe, simple and effective alternative. The amount of sweat is reduced by 92% at 2 weeks after Botox® treatment and lasts 7 to 16 months. This treatment can be done in our office and takes less than an hour.

Hyperhidrosis of the hands and feet is best treated with iontophoresis, a procedure using a special water bath that conducts mild electrical current. The treatment also can be done in our office and takes less than an hour. It must be done every other day for the first 6 to 10 treatments but then the intervals can usually be extended and it can be done at home. When used correctly, it has a high success rate. —By Janet H. Pulskamp, M.D.
