LOCAL PHYSICIANS GROUP JOINS
ROUND-THE-CLOCK RELAY COMING TO CUESTA PARK

By Alexa Tondreau

Early next month, the American Cancer Society will hold its annual "Relay for Life" event, which has relay teams around the nation on the move for a day and a night in order to raise money for cancer research.

For the duration of the event, which begins June 2, at least one person from each team will be running or walking the selected route. This year, a group of Mountain View doctors, the Women Physicians Ob-Gyn Medical Group, will be taking part in the relay at Cuesta Park.

"The idea of the relay is that cancer never sleeps," said Katherine Sutherland, a doctor with the Women Physicians group and a cancer survivor. "The relay has to keep going all night long. It's a very symbolic way of saying, 'We have to keep fighting.'"

For 24 hours, at least one person from each team will be running or walking.

So far, the Women Physicians group has assembled a team of 12 people, Sutherland said, including the four doctors in the practice, staff members and several patients. But she was quick to encourage any and all interested parties to join the group's relay team, or just to come out and support participants in the event.

The Women Physicians team — which hopes to raise $5,000 for the American Cancer Society — is one of several Mountain View teams scheduled to participate in the relay at Cuesta Park. (Other teams include MidPeninsula Surgical Associates, El Camino Hospital's Cancer Center, and two other ECH teams.)

Cuesta Park should be a lively place to spend some time that weekend, Sutherland said. There will be booths set up with games and arts and crafts, and a band

FIERCELY DETERMINED STROKE SURVIVOR
HONORED AT THIS WEEKEND'S 'HUMAN RACE' EVENT

By Diana Reynolds Roome

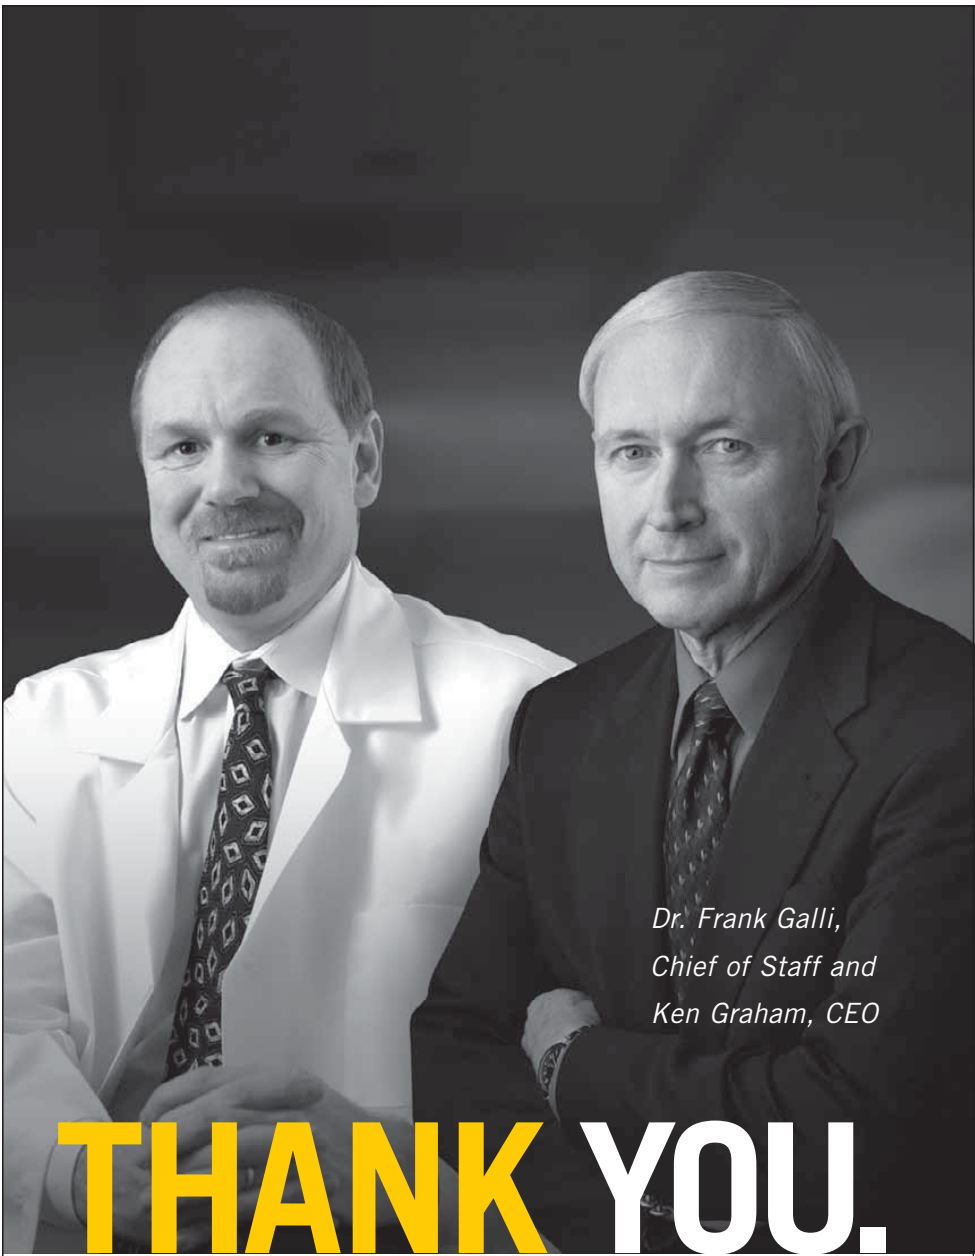

Three and a half years ago on Thanksgiving Day, Mike Cooper suffered a stroke. Shortly afterwards, his heart stopped after going into atrial fibrillation at the hospital. Code blue was called and he was revived, only to discover later that he was completely paralyzed on his right side, and could no longer speak or swallow.

At the time, Cooper was CEO of a software company, and at 56 apparently in the peak of health. He worked out every day, running and spinning strenuously at the gym. Suddenly he was in a wheelchair, unable to eat or write, and hardly able to make himself understood.

But determination was always a big part of Cooper's character, as well as strong motivation and a positive outlook, said his wife Mieke Wiegman. As someone who had run the Bay-to-Breakers race for 19 years in a row, he was not about to miss his 20th. With the help of Mieke — and of physical, occupational and speech therapists and a speech pathologist

THANK YOU.

WE SALUTE ALL WHO HELP US DELIVER THE RIGHT CARE, RIGHT HERE.

Everyone at El Camino Hospital is focused on delivering health care the way it should be. And based on patient feedback, and the major industry honors we've earned, we're doing an excellent job. In honor of National Hospital Week, we'd like to thank the doctors, nurses, and staff who work so hard to deliver the highest standard of care. Your dedication has helped us earn distinction from HealthGrades® as a Distinguished Hospital for Clinical Excellence, ranking us in the top 5% in the nation. We are the only Northern California hospital to receive this award for the last three years running. Add that to our status as a Magnet hospital for nursing excellence, and a host of other honors, and you see why El Camino Hospital is the facility of choice for patients looking for the right care, right here.

CELEBRATING HOSPITAL WEEK,
MAY 6 – 12

El Camino Hospital: a trusted community partner for more than four decades

The new El Camino Hospital, opening 2009.

This week, hospitals all across the country are paying tribute to the pride, professionalism and people of health care. The official slogan of National Hospital Week this year is “Care You Count On, People You Trust.”

Nearly 46 years ago, when El Camino Hospital opened, our first patient was a young mother who delivered the hospital's first baby hours after being admitted. Since then more than 150,000 babies (and now their babies!) have been safely delivered here. Thousands of patients have received the skilled and attentive care of the hospital's nurses and other caregivers. Numerous others, when seeking help in an emergency, have found it here at all times of the day, all days of the week.

A typical month at El Camino Hospital:*

Patients admitted	1700	Chaplain's visits	1,000
Newborns delivered	335	Patient meals	19,650
Surgeries	480	Area cleaned and maintained	700,000 sq.ft.
Visits to the ER	3432	Linen used and processed	190,840 lbs.
Heart attacks treated	34	Bills processed	18,700
Outpatient lab tests	29,502	Purchase orders issued	2,800
Radiology tests	3000	Time spent by volunteers	8,800 hrs.
Dialysis treatments	7,075
Medication orders filled	179,650

*numbers are approximate

During National Hospital Week, we are celebrating the extraordinary relationship between our hospital and the community as well as the professional and dedicated work done every day by the more than 2,000 people on our staff. They take care of patients, keep the hospital clean, prepare the meals, keep the boilers going, handle the finances, maintain the equipment and much more. We also celebrate and thank the physicians who entrust the care of their patients to us and our volunteers whose contributions are felt in every corner of the hospital.

National Hospital Week is also a good time to celebrate El Camino Hospital's unique position in an industry dominated by corporate health care and large hospital systems. El Camino Hospital was established as and remains to this day an independent, locally governed, not for profit hospital. Decisions about the services and care we provide are made by committed leaders, talented, dedicated physicians and staff.

El Camino Hospital is proud of the contributions it has made over the past 46 years as a valued community resource, a neighbor and a friend.

Getting the most from your doctor's appointment

By Dr. Ed Yu

Q: I get overwhelmed and nervous when I go see the doctor and then forget to tell him important things. Any suggestions?

Dr. Ed Yu

A: A visit to the doctor can be stressful for some people, especially if you are ill. Here's a list of things you can do to get the most out of your time with your doctor.

Before

Keep a personal health record (PHR) and take it with you to your visit. (You can make your own with an easy online tool under the Health Education/Tools portion of www.camino-medical.org.) Your PHR should include you:

- Symptoms, including when they started and anything that makes them better or worse.

- Medication(s) including prescriptions, over-the-counter drugs, herbal or homeopathic products and vitamins.

- Temperature, diet, exercise and sleep patterns.

- General wellness, including any allergies or chronic problems.

- Updated family and personal medical history, including surgeries and serious illnesses. If a parent has had a stroke or a sibling has been diagnosed with cancer, tell your doctor. If you are switching from one doctor to another, get copies of your medical records. It's critical to your health to educate your new physician about your past medical history.

During

- If you have more than one issue, tell the receptionist when you check in.

- Take your PHR and list of questions, along with your insurance information and pharmacist's phone and fax numbers.

- Take notes. Ask your doctor to clarify anything you don't understand, and write down the name of a condition or medicine you don't know.

- Find out if you need a follow-up appointment or referral to a specialist.

- Be sure you understand the possible side effects of any medicines or treatments the doctor prescribes.

After

- Follow your doctor's advice. Medications can't help you when you don't take them.

- Call the doctor's office if you don't understand any of the instructions, if your condition worsens, or if you experience side effects from any medicines.

- If you have an appointment for a return visit, keep the appointment.

Q: What are the best resources to learn about medical issues?

A: With so much information readily available, it can sometimes be confusing. What information can you trust? Is the information current? Is the recommended treatment the most recent and evidence-based? Does the author have a bias?

It is wise to consult with health care specialists about the most reliable sources to learn about your health. Camino Medical Group and other local medical facilities offer a variety of public information services. CMG has a Health Resource Center that is free and open to the public (weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.). It has myriad online and in-hand references for people who need help learning how to do a medical search or need more advanced information.

Online health information can be plentiful or "hit or miss." Always consider the source; a blogger is not a doctor. There is a lot of bogus medical advice out there. Use the Internet to help you formulate questions, but don't view all sites as being definitive and reliable resources. You'll find the most reliable, easy-to-understand information on the Web sites of your care provider, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (www.cdc.gov), or national medical associations specializing in specific conditions and illnesses.

Are you taking good care of yourself? Review CMG's Preventive Health Care Guidelines at www.caminomedical.org ■ is scheduled to perform. Food and refreshments will be provided, she said.

Additionally, the Women Physicians plan to take the opportunity to educate the public.

"We're bringing a lot of information with us," Sutherland said. "We'll have newsletters, handouts and videos."

There will also be representatives on hand from the hospital's Cancer Center and from a local nursing group, Sutherland said.

Perhaps the most moving part of the event comes at dusk, when participants can light "luminarias"—small, candle-lit containers—which are decorated in honor and support of family members or friends who have suffered from cancer.

Most of those involved in the relay from the Women Physicians group have been affected by cancer, either personally or

"When you're tracks. It gets you to re-thinking your life."

KATHERINE SUTHERLAND

through the experience of friends and family.

"It's so amazing how many people have had a brush with cancer," Sutherland said, adding that her own experience with the disease motivated her to help organize the upcoming event.

"When you're given that diagnosis, it really stops you in your tracks," she said. "It gets you to re-thinking your life."

Sutherland said that as a doctor and a cancer survivor she lives with the feeling "that there is always more that can be done." Part of her interest in generating funds for the American Cancer Society comes from the organization's reputable standing.

She said that although by and large her patients—who come from all over the South Bay and Peninsula—are a fairly well-informed group when it comes to cancer, she is still surprised by the number of misconceptions and fallacies some patients believe.

"We love the Internet for the ease of finding information, but it's easy to get a lot of misinformation from it," she said. "I've had patients refuse treatment because of what they read" on the Internet, she said.

► See CANCER, page 37

CANCER

Sutherland recommends the American Cancer Society's Web site as a good place to start for accurate and comprehensive information on specific types of cancer. ■

— Cooper worked ferociously to regain all he had lost.

Stroke, which is caused by the interruption of blood flow to the brain, can affect the body and mind in varied and unpredictable ways. Mieke encouraged her husband to push his reluctant limbs to move again, get out of his wheelchair, eat by himself, and try to speak — even though damage to the speech center of his brain made it a challenge to get a word out, let alone an intelligible sentence.

Using every possible means, including singing songs, reciting the alphabet, and playing Scrabble, Cooper and Mieke worked tirelessly to exercise the damaged connection between brain and lips.

When the next Bay-to-Breakers race came around in May 2004,

Cooper managed to walk the entire 7.5-mile course by himself. It took him three and a half hours. Mieke reluctantly let him go, but did not join him. “I don’t want to see you kill yourself,” she recalls telling him. Against overwhelming odds, Cooper has now completed the Bay-to-Breakers race for 24 years without a break.

This Saturday, May 12, he’ll be running with Mieke in the Human Race at Shoreline Park, helping to raise funds for the Peninsula Stroke Association. In recognition of their extraordinary achievement in recovery, they are honorees of the PSA team. The association, a nonprofit dedicated to preventing stroke and supporting stroke survivors and their families in Santa Clara and San Mateo counties, has helped Cooper regain his life in a number of ways.

“I love to go to various PSA support groups,” said Cooper. “And I admire what the whole organization does for stroke survivors and also for people who might have a stroke.”

But the best part for him is the opportunity to be effective again. As a peer visitor, he goes every week to the Mills Peninsula Hospital to visit patients of all ages who have recently had strokes. He also aims to become a speaker who can educate the public about recognizing stroke warning signs and acting fast to get the patient to a certified stroke center for expert medical help.

For various reasons, Cooper was not able to receive the most effective medical treatments as soon as he suffered his stroke, and had to regain his abilities more slowly through therapy. But he is especially effective in demonstrating that it is possible to make an extraordinary recovery from the most devastating effects of stroke.

Some of the most advanced stroke treatments in the world have been developed by two Mountain View companies, and teams from both are taking part in the Human Race fundraiser.

Concentric Medical’s Merci Retriever has been used with more than 5,000 patients since its approval by the FDA in 2004. The instrument, resembling a tiny corkscrew, has successfully removed stroke-causing blood clots in almost 70 percent of patients, including those whose treatment has been delayed.

Boston Scientific’s Wingspan Intracranial Stent opens up blocked blood vessels in the brain, thus restoring blood flow essential to preventing a stroke. Other Boston Scientific devices are designed to prevent stroke after the rupture of an intracranial aneurysm. ■

“I don’t want to see you kill yourself.”

MIEKE WIEGMAN

“I admire what the whole organization does for stroke survivors and also for people who might have a stroke.”
