INDO-AMERICAN BANK OPENS IN MOUNTAIN VIEW

ECONOMIC DOWNTURN NOT A CONCERN FOR GLOBAL TRUST'S INVESTORS

THERE ARE AN ESTIMATED 100,000 INDIANS IN SANTA CLARA COUNTY EARNING AN AVERAGE HOUSEHOLD INCOME OF $126,000, IN CONTRAST TO THE OVERALL COUNTY MEDIAN INCOME OF $95,000

By Daniel DeBolt

Given the worldwide economic recession, this might seem like a strange time to open a bank. But Vinod Thukral and Jim Wall don't think so.

Wall and Thukral operate Global Trust Bank, which opened its first offices at 700 E. El Camino Real in Mountain View in early December. The bank aims to get its footing by targeting the county's Indo-American business community.

Global Trust is the first bank in the Bay Area with a majority of Indo-Americans on the board: six of eight members. It is also owned largely by about 270 local Indo-American doctors, executives and business owners who were convinced that it was a good investment.

"There are a number of successful Indians in the Bay Area," said Wall, president and CEO. "The goal is to make it feel like it is their bank."

The bank is unaffected by "legacy problems" and bad lending practices that have recently hurt other banks, Wall said. Global Trust is set to build on $21 million in start-up funding and is actually "eager to lend," said Thukral, chairman of the board.

Thukral had the idea for the bank two years ago when he realized that there weren't any local Indian-run banks serving the large Indian population in the Bay Area. He had

SERVICE HELPS INMATES AND THEIR FAMILIES COPE WITH INCARCERATION

By Jennifer Pence

In Santa Clara County, about 80,000 people are booked into county jail each year. Not only are these people's lives dramatically affected, but so are the lives of their family members. Since 1955, Friends Outside (FO) in Santa Clara County has been providing services for these inmates and their families, both as a trusted, non-judgmental referral source to existing services and as a direct service provider.

"Sadly, some families have had several generations go through the jail system and have come to trust FO to help them even though they are too ashamed or mistrustful to go to other organizations. FO takes the time to ensure that each person gets exactly the right help," says David Gonzales, executive director of FO.

The numerous volunteers and 14 full-time staff members of FO help Santa Clara County inmates in the county, state and federal jails, but their influence is most felt in the county system, where they are the primary provider of most services to inmates. These services include bringing in reading materials, notarizing business papers, representing inmates in disciplinary hearings, and cashing inmates' paychecks, which are frequently in their wallets at the time they are arrested.

The majority of FO's programs, however, are focused on the inmates' families in hopes of breaking the cycle of incarceration and fostering appropriate parent-child relationships. One such program is the Steps Ahead program, which works with the caregivers of inmates' children under the age of 5. This time-intensive program involves having trained staff members visit each family at home once per week for six months to teach the caregivers better parenting skills and help them develop a family plan to move toward both more productive parenting and self-sufficiency (stable housing, job, food).

"Many of these parents are in early drug and alcohol recovery and are often children of offenders themselves, so they don't yet know how to parent," explains Gonzales. "However, we've had great success in this program, especially with helping the parents remain sober."

The Youth Program addresses the needs of inmates' older children (ages 7 to 17). These children meet with staff members and volunteers for three hours per week for after-school mentoring, cultural enlightenment, tutoring, field trips and "values clarification."

"There is a culture of poverty that teaches long-standing values. Many of the youths we work with grow up in families that have experienced several generations of incarceration and drug and alcohol addiction. We want to help the youths re-examine these values and hopefully form new ones that do not glorify violence, substance abuse and gang membership," says Gonzales.

Overall, FO helps only a tiny percentage of people who go through the jail system in Santa Clara County. For example, in 2008 the Steps Ahead program served 56 families, and the Youth Program reached 40 kids during the school year and 80 during the summer.

There are at least two reasons for this. First, many of the people who use the referrals and services provided by FO shortly after intake have too many personal issues to follow through on longer-term programs. Second, funding is always a problem — the direct services to inmates are paid for by the county, but the other programs must be funded through grants from foundations and donations from corporations and individuals, which are always volatile.

While FO does rely on a large number of volunteers, the group's greatest need is always for donations. Please see www.friendsoutsideinscc.org for info on how to donate, and check back for information about FO's annual spring luncheon fundraiser at Michael's at Shoreline. ■

FOR $399, MOUNTAIN VIEW COMPANY 23ANDME WILL DECODE YOUR GENOME

By Angela Hey

Do you want to know whether you are at risk for a specific disease? Are you curious about your heritage? 23andMe, a Mountain View startup, may have just the service for you. Last year, Time Magazine named its service "Invention of the Year."

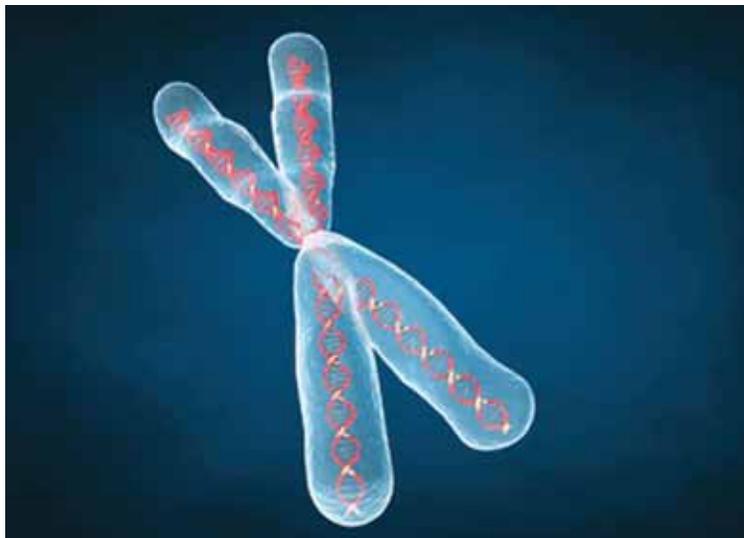

23andMe was founded by biopharma executive Linda Avey and healthcare investor Anne Wojcicki, who is wife of Google founder Sergey Brin. Google, Genentech, New Enterprise Associates and Mohr Davidow are investors in the company.

For $399 you can find out your approximate risk for specific diseases, where your ancestors came from and how similar your genome is to that of your friends. 23andMe analyzes 600,000 data points, technically SNPs — single nucleotide polymorphisms — or DNA sequence variations, on the human genome. A lab analyzes your genome from a saliva sample.

The best way to understand the service is to try the online demonstration at www.23andMe.com. A hundred and fifty years after the father of modern genetics, Gregor Mendel, was experimenting with peas, the demo shows results for a fictional couple, Greg and Lilly Mendel. Lilly Mendel has a higher than normal risk of getting psoriasis, a disease that gives you itchy skin. 23andMe has done an excellent job in creating highly readable reports that describe the disease, show the progress of research and give links to support groups.

The service also tells you which diseases you are less likely to get. We see how Greg Mendel's genome compares with those of his relatives. No surprise, it was most like those of his children. A report also shows his ancestors came from Europe.

The last five years have seen incredible breakthroughs in genomics. According to Francis Collins, former director of the National Human Genome Research Institute, almost all diseases, except those resulting from trauma, are to some extent influenced by our genes. In just the last two years, genetic codes have been linked to many diseases. A recent Boston University paper suggested that by 2012 genetic testing would be so commonplace that presidential candidates would need to reveal an analysis of their genomes and their risk for diseases.

What do your genes say about you?

Alex Wong, director of products, says that 23andMe is building a consumer platform that brings people together based on their

Other doctors like to treat informed patients who take responsibility for their health seriously. Personal genomics is a major breakthrough that, together with home health tests, online consultations and preventative medicine, will change the doctor-patient relationship. Doctors, not just genetic counselors, will need training in personal genomics. Patients will need to decide whether to be tested, and if so whether they want to share the results with their doctor, or their online friends — or the whole world.

You can keep your genetic information totally private, or you may wish to share it with your family or with the wider public. Wong envisions a day when people will share genomic information on sites like Facebook. Whereas I don't mind sharing my photos on the Web, I might be more wary of sharing my genetic information. ■ genetic information. Besides a strong consumer emphasis, the company helps research institutions like the Parkinson's Institute find genetic patterns in Parkinson's disease sufferers. Avey announced at the World Economic Forum in Davos that the company is partnering with Swiss open source biotech company mondoBIOTECH to build databases for researching rare diseases.

Some doctors are concerned that the "worried well" will be attracted to personal genotyping services, resulting in a possible increase in psychosomatic patients. They advise people to undertake genetic analysis with the help of a medical doctor who can assess lifestyle, current physical condition and family history and prescribe the specific genetic tests required.

Soon after the idea got wings, the recession hit. Wall said it's not unusual, however, for a bank to open during or just before a recession.

Thukral said the bank's potential customers will likely include small Indo-American businesses, like gas stations and small hotels — businesses that might have a hard time getting loans right now from other banks.

"It's not that the Indian community is not being served well," Thukral said. "Banking is all about relationships — we can reach out to them better."

There are an estimated 100,000 Indians in Santa Clara County oversee the bank after running the Bank of Los Altos from 1995 until 2000, proving that a small community-oriented bank could do well. He also helped co-found the Private Bank of the Peninsula in 2003. He calls the act of financing a bank a "conservative investment," with an almost guaranteed return in the long run.

To better serve its account holders, Global Trust has made agreements with other banks so that ATM machines around the country can be used by Global Trust customers. The bank then reimburses transaction fees.

Wall said it was likely the bank would eventually expand into the East Bay, where there is a concentration of Indians in Fremont and other cities. ■

Chamber workshops to help businesses through recession

The Mountain View Chamber of Commerce will be hosting a series of workshops through the summer conducted by a "certified business coach."

Focusing on "aspects of personal and professional growth," the 12 two-hour lunchtime workshops will start this February and run through July, twice a month.

David Joud of Dynamic Strategic Alignment will conduct the workshops, which are aimed at business owners, managers and executives.

"In times of economic trouble, we all make a choice: talking and worrying about the state of the economy or working on bettering ourselves, building our competitive edge and focusing our energy on building a great business," Joud says.

Subjects Joud will cover include "How to outperform and outlast competition," "Why customer satisfaction isn't good enough" and "How to use customer loyalty to double your business in a recession."

The workshops can be attended individually or as a package for $199 for Chamber members or $299 for non-members. For more, visit www.chambermv.org.

FINCK, JUDITH A. FINCK, JUDITH FINCK.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's available for examination in the file kept

by the court.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions,
however, the personal representative
will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months

from the hearing date noticed above.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court
a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available
