Happy hour: the best time of day whether you're hungry, thirsty, looking to save a few bucks — or all three. Happy hour's exact origins remain murky. Reportedly, Navy men in the 1920s used the phrase to refer to a time of the day set aside for fun or athletic entertainment — wrestling, boxing, et cetera — to boost morale. Or maybe it began with "l'heure verte" (the green hour) in France in the 18th century, when many Parisians' drink of choice was green-hued absinthe. During Prohibition in the 1920s, thirsty Americans reportedly gathered for illegal drinks before heading out for dinner.

Whatever its origins, happy hour is here to stay. Check out this by-no-means-exhaustive roundup of some of the top happy hours in the region, from the stiffest cocktails and most appealing appetizers to a bar where the drinks are so affordable it doesn't even need a happy hour.

Trendy San Francisco transplant Tacolicious in Palo Alto has a pretty standard happy hour — Monday-Wednesday, 3-7 p.m., and Thursday-Friday, 3-6 p.m., with house margarita, sangria, bartender's choice cocktail, a glass of wine or a beer for $5.50. Tacos, quesadillas and guacamole are also $5.50 each — but the real star is the "T-lish prefix." This low-brow version of high-end pre-fixe menus is available at any time and comes with a shot, a beer and a taco — all for $10. The shot is El Jimador tequila, the beer a Tecate and the taco one of the restaurant's signatures. Owner Joe Hargrave cut his chops in more upscale restaurants, explained Tacolicious Marketing Manager Sarah Qadri, so this is his "fun spoof on those more formal dining experiences." The Tacolicious bar is also stocked with more than 100 tequilas, so drink your heart out. Tacolicious, 632 Emerson St., Palo Alto; tacolicious.com

At Mountain View pub St. Stephen's Green, Monday-Friday, 3-5:30 p.m., draft beer ranges from $2.25 to $5. Grab a vodka or a glass of house wine for $4.50. From 5:30-6:30 p.m., prices go up by about a dollar, but the kitchen also opens so you can get appetizers and entrees like a shepherd's pie or fish and chips at a lower price. If you're a weekend brunch-goer, order any breakfast item on Saturday or Sunday and you'll get bottomless mimosas. St. Stephen's Green, 223 Castro St., Mountain View; ststephensgreen.com

The best happy hour deal in town has to be at Antonio's Nuthouse on California Avenue in Palo Alto, where happy hour doesn't actually exist because the dive bar's prices are already so low. "My prices are like happy hour all the time," said owner Tony Montooth. Well drinks are $3.50, domestic beers are $3.25 and imported beers, $4. No umbrellas in your drinks or pretentious ingredients you can't pronounce at the Nuthouse, where peanut shells litter the floor, bras hang from the ceiling and a sign behind the bar warns, "No laptops on bar please!" About eight months ago, Antonio's Nuthouse did get into the discounted drink game, however: $3 margaritas from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. on every day that ends in "y." The margaritas — mixed by Montooth himself in a large plastic jug — are served in a pint glass with a slice of lime and a salted rim. Don't question the limit of two per person — they're strong. Antonio's Nut House, 321 California Ave., Palo Alto; 650-321-2550

happy hour, Nola in Palo Alto has you covered. A longtime favorite at the downtown bar and restaurant is the chicken, biscuits and brew: two buttermilk biscuits, crispy chicken tenders, pickle chips, “Mardi Gras” slaw, house-made bacon jam and gravy — plus a pint of draft beer — all for a cool $10. Chef Tam Sugayan said he came up with the chicken and biscuits after creating his own bacon jam (and the beer just made sense). He said he’s currently working on revamping the menu to add items like an ahi poke, brisket sliders and perhaps a less traditional kind of chicken wings. Nola’s happy hour runs Monday-Friday, 3-6 p.m., and Sunday, 9 p.m.-midnight. Specialty cocktails are $6, well drinks are $5, wines by the glass are $6, pints are $5 and pitchers are $15.

toppings) for only $5. A few blocks away, Il Fornaio offers 10-inch pizzas (for two people or one hungry person) for $6 during its happy hour, Monday-Friday, 4-6 p.m.

Longest happy hour

The award for longest happy hour in the area may well go to the Old Pro sports bar in downtown Palo Alto, where you can drink, eat and maybe even ride the mechanical bull at a discount for eight solid hours: 11 a.m.-7 p.m. daily. Seven food and drink items are offered for $7 and rotated on a regular basis. Pro tip: Happy hour isn’t offered during “major events” like Stanford University game days.

Late night

Seafood spot Shell Shock in downtown Mountain View has a typical, early evening weeknight happy hour — and then it has a late-night happy hour. From 9 p.m. to closing every day except Monday, grab late-night bites like crispy oyster nachos ($7), “break an egg” (fries with a fried egg, chorizo and serrano peppers for $7) and crab fat caramel chicken wings ($6). Drinks like the “booty call” (Absolut mandarin vodka, Aperol, grapefruit juice, fresh lemon juice, agave and sparkling wine) and the “lady killer” (barrel-aged bourbon whiskey, vermouth, Amaro Averna, Luxardo marschino liqueur and Angostura bitters) are $6 and named aptly for

The 5-year-old downtown Mountain View izakaya, Bushido, has you covered with late-night food and drink Thursday-Saturday, 10 p.m.-midnight. Appetizers like the kurobuta pork buns — braised pork belly, pickled vegetables and Bushido’s “special sauce” served in a steamed bun — and the ever-popular sesame wings drenched in an appetizing sesame glaze are only $5. Play the sushi version of Russian roulette with Bushido’s hara-kiri roll ($8), which comes with snow crab, spicy tuna and shrimp tempura wrapped in soy paper, with one piece much spicier than the others. (For its sushi, Bushido serves sustainable fish that is hand-cut on-site.) Fanny Bay oysters on the half shell with ponzu sauce, pico de gallo and green onions are $1.50. Bushido also has some epic drink deals every night of the week except Monday: Tuesday is half-off all wine; Wednesday is half-off sake and flights; Thursday is happy hour-priced drinks ($5 for cocktails, $3 draft beer, $3 small sake and $4 large) all night; Friday and Saturday is $5 for Grey Goose cocktails; Sunday, happy hour drinks and $1.50 oysters all night.

Gordon Biersch in downtown Palo Alto offers a later happy hour Sunday-Thursday, 9 p.m.-close. Individual small plates at the brewery-restaurant start at $2.95; shareable plates are $7.95. Beers brewed in-house are $1 off, wines by the glass are $2 off and cocktails, $3.

For wine lovers

Wines are often an afterthought during happy hour, but they’re the main event at Vino Locale’s “mystery flight night” every Thursday, 5-9 p.m. Taste four wines for $25 (plus a “mystery” snack). Guess the varietals and your flight is on the house.

In "The Hunting Ground," victims of sexual assault speak out about the widespread culture of denial and lack of support from university administrators.

No excuses

'THE HUNTING GROUND' EXPOSES RAPE CULTURE ON COLLEGE CAMPUSES

★★★ 1/2 (CEMEX Auditorium, Stanford)

Director Kirby Dick's new documentary on sexual assault, "The Hunting Ground," should be required viewing for every current and incoming college student.

The film begins with snapshots of several young women receiving their college acceptance letters or emails. They scream with excitement, some bursting into tears, surrounded by equally ebullient mothers, fathers and siblings.

The scenes are later chilling, in stark contrast with the tears shed by dozens of college students (mostly young women, but also some men) as they recount on camera how they were sexually assaulted — and then failed by the institutions to which they reported their assaults.

"The Hunting Ground," which premiered earlier this year and is making its way to college campuses across the country through individual screenings, brings to light the complex issues driving the rising tide of student activism focused on campus sexual assault. From victim blaming, fraternity culture and the lucrative business of college sports to flawed university processes and philosophies around adjudicating reports of sexual assault, the film exposes the a culture of denial and makes it clear the time has come for widespread reform.

The film will be screened at Stanford University on Tuesday, April 28, from 7 to 9 p.m. at CEMEX Auditorium. The free event will also feature a panel discussion with producer Amy Ziering, Stanford Title IX Coordinator Catherine Criswell and Angela Exson, director of Stanford's Sexual Assault & Relationship Abuse (SARA) office.

Stanford is one of numerous universities that has recently come under fire for its mishandling of sexual assault, and the April 28 screening holds heightened significance. It comes soon after a university task force released a series of recommendations for how Stanford must reform its sexual-assault procedures, policies and resources. The school is also now under investigation by the U.S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights for Title IX investigations, and a former star freshman swimmer is due in court in Palo Alto this June for allegedly raping an unconscious woman on campus in January.

The opening scene of "The Hunting Ground" sets up a juxtaposition that continues throughout the film. It forces viewers to square the idyllic image of college as a safe, fun, nurturing place where passions are pursued and lifelong friends are made with a much darker side where known rapists walk free, and students who are brave enough to report sexual assault are the ones left feeling punished.

The responsibility for this injustice doesn't lie only with perpetrators of sexual assault, the film suggests, but also with those in power who are obligated to adjudicate such situations. "The Hunting Ground" is a fierce condemnation of university presidents and administrators who appear to choose reputation and brand over doing what is right when faced with reports of serious sexual misconduct on their campuses.

The examples are numerous. At the University of North Carolina (UNC), student-activist Annie Clark said when she finally told an administrator that she had been violently raped, the administrator told her "Rape is like a football game, Annie. If you look back on the game, what would you do differently in that situation?"

The backbone of "The Hunting Ground" is the story line of Clark and Andrea Pino, another UNC student survivor turned activist. After Pino seeks Clark's support during her freshman year, the two join forces to fight for change at their university and eventually to launch a national grassroots campaign for sexual-assault reform. Clark and Pino went on to found End Rape on Campus, now a robust survivor advocacy organization.

Director Kirby Dick and producer Amy Ziering, who also worked together on "The

Invisible War,” a 2012 documentary on the rape epidemic in the U.S. military, follow Clark and Pino on their advocacy journey from Chapel Hill to Capitol Hill. Viewers of the film listen in as Clark and Pino receive emotional Skype calls, voice mails, tweets and text messages from survivors across the country who have heard about their work and reached out for support and guidance.

Though the presidents and chancellors of many of the universities featured in “The Hunting Ground” declined to be interviewed, the film does speak to a young man who went to jail for six and a half years for sexual assault (his face is blurred out to protect his identity); to the Florida district attorney (and Florida State University alumni) who decided not to file charges against star quarterback Jameis Winston despite DNA evidence that later linked him to an assault he was accused of; to a former Dartmouth College fraternity brother and a former member of the University of Notre Dame’s police department.

Some of the survivors’ accounts of their assaults and universities’ lackluster responses are pieced together, with women in separate interviews essentially finishing each other’s sentences. The effect is powerful and profound. You watch Pino bury her head in her hands, explaining how she relives her own assault every time she hears another survivor’s story,

“...but it’s the only way I get up in the morning,” she says. “I would have given anything to have somebody who believed me, somebody who supported me.”

Rated PG-13 for disturbing thematic material involving sexual assault, and for language. One hour, 30 minutes.

JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT
(MVF Apr. 3, 10, 17, 24, 2015)

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
CHRISTOPHER JOSEPH LINCOLN, also known as CHRISTOPHER LINCOLN
Case No.: 1-15 PR 176142
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of CHRISTOPHER JOSEPH LINCOLN, also known as CHRISTOPHER LINCOLN.

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: LOUISA CONWAY in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA. The Petition for Probate requests that: LOUISA CONWAY be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on May 11, 2015 at 9:30 a.m. in Dept.: 10 of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Clara, located at 191 N. First St., San Jose, CA, 95113.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58 (b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. You may examine the file kept by the court.

If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
