Donato Enoteca is Italian, the way it should be

■ RESTAURANT REVIEW

When Donato Scotti opened La Strada in Palo Alto in 2004, he breathed new life into the dining scene on University Avenue. His appetizers were dazzling, pasta dishes luscious, fish perfectly cooked and desserts were worth the calories.

Donato Enoteca in downtown Redwood City was the next logical step for Scotti. Opened in 2009, there was more space for him to flex his culinary muscles — more homemade pastas, pizzas from the wood burning oven, an open kitchen and three private dining rooms besides the mainstay enoteca (wine bar), as well as patio dining and an expanded wine cellar.

Scotti, a native of Bergamo in northern Italy, was raised in a food-conscious family and followed his natural instincts to culinary school in Italy, then cooked his way to New York, Los Angeles, and finally the Bay Area where he was head chef at Il Fornaio in Walnut Creek, and then in Palo Alto. In, 2004, he and a business partner opened La Strada.

Donato Enoteca has a European flavor, both in terms of food and decor. The enoteca and patio are casual gathering spaces for relaxed conversation in a no-hurry atmosphere, while the private dining rooms range from unfussy to elegant.

The menu has a rustic feel to it, the portions are large and artfully plated. Service is discreet but attentive. Donato Enoteca is an enjoyable place to meet, eat, drink and relax. For groups, private rooms can accommodate 12 to 70. Despite the pleasure, I had a couple of issues, mostly with the way some dishes were seasoned.

To whet the appetite, five crispy whole baby artichokes ($11) were served on an elongated plate. It was a diverting presentation and the artichokes provided the perfect crunch with a sauce of mint, garlic and parsley.

The duck egg with fresh local asparagus ($8) made a delightful small appetizer or side dish. The egg was over easy rather than poached, with just enough delicious, runny yolk.

Warm Mediterranean octopus ($11) salad was an enticing composition of potatoes, Taggiasca olives from Liguria, organic celery hearts, capers and arugula drizzled with a light lemon-citronette dressing. Sadly, the salad was way too salty. I deconstructed it to see if the olives or capers were the culprits. No, they were tame compared to the other over-salted elements. It took half a lemon squeezed over to make it palatable.

Of the five pizzas offered, I ordered the organic artichokes, tomato and fresh mozzarella with homemade “spicy sausage” pizza ($16). It looked divine, the crust was pliant with a slight char and plenty of ingredients. It had very little flavor though. I segregated some of the sausage and there wasn’t an inkling of spice. The kitchen, I was told, used the wrong sausage.

The pastas were first-rate. The agnolotti del plin ($18) featured small homemade ravioli. Agnolotti is a typical Piemontese filled pasta, “del plin” refers to the pinch used to close the folded pasta. The pasta was stuffed with rabbit, veal and pork and the sauce was made from tomato, onions, sausage and veal. It was mouthwatering, with a savory depth of flavor.

Bigoli ($19), a long, thick extruded pasta, was sauced with aromatic braised oxtails and Nebbiolo wine over spears of asparagus, sprinkled with fresh grated cheese. Huge flavors — Italian, the way it should be.

The white-fleshed baked branzino filet ($26) was delicately flavored with a hint of sweetness. Served with locally grown fava bean puree and black rice, flavors permeated every taste bud from lips to throat.

The baked branzino filet is served atop fava bean puree and black venere rice at Donato Enoteca in Redwood City.

The perfectly grilled veal loin chop ($28) was topped with a mixture of herbs and white wine over organic dandelion greens and grilled polenta. It looked fantastic, and while the meat was tender, it lacked seasoning, as if it had been grilled without so much as salt and pepper. While it was good, it could have been great.

Seasoning was an ongoing problem, either missing or overstated in each of my three visits, not on every dish but enough dishes. Perhaps the line cooks need a refresher, because the restaurant has everything else going for it.

For dessert, the warm, velvety chocolate hazelnut cake ($9) was sinfully gooey and served with vanilla bean gelato. Organic lemon panna cotta ($8), with homemade zesty orange sauce, was fine, though too much orange sauce overpowered the thickened cream.

The wine selection was a tour of Italy. Many of the finest

"The Jungle Book" includes vocal performances by Lupita Nyong'o, Ben Kingsley, Scarlett Johansson, Bill Murray, Christopher Walken and Idris Elba

'Book' your 'Jungle' cruise today

DISNEY'S KID-STUFF REMAKE MAKES GOOD

★★★ (Century 16 and 20)

Perhaps like you, dear reader, I approached Disney's new version of "The Jungle Book" with a chip on my shoulder and the question "Why? Just, why?" The answer, I assumed, was because "they" can, and there's gold in them thar trees. But Jon Favreau's live-action/CGI spectacle turns out to be a mighty impressive adventure film for kids that accumulates substantial reasons to justify its existence.

Disney took its first crack at Rudyard Kipling's 1894 anthology "The Jungle Book" in 1967, with a now-iconic animated film. A live-action take followed in 1994, a direct-to-video title in 1998, an animated sequel in 2003, and now the Favreau film, which derives directly from both the 1967 film and the books by Kipling. Favreau retains jungle-boy Mowgli's red-swaddling outfit, the '67 film's characterizations and basic plot outline, and three songs ("The Bare Necessities," "I Wan'na Be Like You," and, on the end credits, "Trust in Me"), but screenwriter Justin Marks also puts a bit more "Book" (read Kipling) in this "Jungle Book."

Raised-by-wolves Mowgli (live-action actor Neel Sethi) loves his adoptive parents Akela (Giancarlo Esposito) and Raksha (Lupita Nyong'o), but pressure from murder-on-his-mind tiger Shere Khan (Idris Elba) sends the "man-cub" toward civilization, a self-sacrifice for the common good of peace in the jungle 'hood (similarly, one of this film's nice flourishes is a "water truce" amongst predators and prey at a watering hole dubbed "Peace Rock"). Mowgli's journey includes guidance from black panther and longtime mentor Bagheera (Ben Kingsley) and new acquaintance Baloo (Bill Murray), a honey-hungry bear all too happy to exploit Mowgli's daring and skill at scaling jungle topography.

Indeed, one of the film's most salient action elements is the frequent depiction of Mowgli scrambling across creeper-covered tree limbs or tumbling down hills and right back onto his footing. These scenes have an exhilarating energy familiar from the now-dominant superhero genre, and, similarly, it's not surprising to see the film explore the shared backstory of Mowgli and Shere Khan, which serves to explain the latter's rage. In keeping with episodic children's stories like "The Wizard of Oz," "Alice in Wonderland," and the original "Jungle Book," Mowgli also has encounters with hypnotic snake Kaa (effectively gender-swapped for Scarlett Johansson) and the Gigantopithecus ape King Louie (Christopher Walken).

Listen, if you don't think having Walken sing "I Wan'na Be Like You" amounts to genius well worth the price of admission, I can't help you. Bill Murray predictably kills it as Baloo, especially with his well-earned apparent ad libs, Kingsley and the rest hit all the right vocal notes. Sethi carries the ball admirably in the lead, and the CGI proves astonishing in selling the animal characters and their jungle home.

The climax feels needlessly prolonged, but Favreau and Marks have obviously put some thought into the film's visual approach and the messages the film will send: the animal kingdom's unexpected threats and opportunities for loving harmony with humankind; the work Mowgli puts in to come-of-age and to terms with his true nature; his casual kindheartedness, pegged as "special" by his elders; and his refusal to submit to fear. For a bonus, "Wonderful World of Disney" fans and uninitiated kids will equally appreciate the nostalgic and newfangled audiovisual punch of the closing credits, a satisfying CGI-animated postscript to the partly live-action feature.

Rated PG for some sequences of scary action and peril. One hour, 45 minutes.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:

EDSON G. KERSWILL

Case No.: 116-PR 178508

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of EDSON G. KERSWILL, EDSON GREGORY KERSWILL.

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: BETTY JO KERSWILL in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA.

The Petition for Probate requests that: BETTY JO KERSWILL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on May 23, 2016 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept.: 10 of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Clara, located at 191 N. First St., San Jose, CA, 95113.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58 (b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
