Staying hot

Cascal's pan-Latin menu still satisfies amid lively downtown scene

■ RESTAURANT REVIEW

Perhaps it's the romantic in me, but inside downtown Mountain View's Cascal I am transported to restaurants in Mexico City, Santiago and Madrid. The vibe is hot: samba, salsa, flamenco and swirls of color, with an energy level that suffuses the dining room and lifts the spirits.

Last time I reviewed Cascal in 2010, I heaped compliments on the Latin-themed restaurant, its vibrant decor, the appetizing small-plate tapas, the paella, seafood and meat creations, the lively bar scene and excellent service. Not much has changed.

Now in their thirteenth year of business, restaurant veteran and founder Dan Durante and partner Brad Daley stay the course, not just for fine-casual dining, but fun-casual dining. When asked, Cascal is my tip-of-the-tongue recommendation for a lively dining scene in Mountain View.

Inside, the high ceiling, arched partitions, bold colors, floor-to-ceiling windows and festive colors of the tables and dinnerware (even the salt and pepper shakers) set a tone of cheerfulness and good times. On weekends, live music amps the tempo of merriment and ratchets the noise level up a notch. For those preferring a more quiet dinner, the outside patio with heaters, trees and flower boxes provides a perfect venue for al fresco dining.

Executive Chef Antonio Flores Lopez, on board since the restaurant's inception, has slowly evolved the menu, adjusting with cyclical economies, food trends and the always-fickle local dining public. The cuisine is always energetic, reasonably priced, well-prepared and appealingly presented.

For me, Cascal's signature dish is the paella. Of the four versions, the paella Cascal is the most traditional, with chicken, pork and shellfish ($24 for a small that easily serves two to three people; $44 for a large). I particularly liked the paella rustica (also $24 and $44) with lamb, chorizo, chicken, morcilla (blood sausage), saffron rice, green beans and sweet piquillo peppers. Other versions are all seafood, all vegetables and all good.

Five sizzling shrimp ($13) were served in hot garlic-infused olive oil with potent chile de árbol and fresh lime. The chilies didn't overpower the dish or the mouth, but rather offer a polite kiss on the lips.

I enjoyed the pescado Marbella ($13), a delicate, fresh, thick halibut filet that was baked in olive oil and topped with preserved lemon, capers and bits of serrano ham. The fish was flaky, moist and, while halibut can be bland, this wasn't.

My favorite dish was the corn-poblano sauté with crisp serrano ham ($10.50). Fresh white corn, poblano chilies, red onions, cotija cheese (a hard and crumbly cow's milk from Mexico) and crema were served like a deep-dish casserole. Unlike a casserole though, the flavors didn't meld together. They were distinct as were the textures: creamy, crisp, moist and chewy. The dish was enticing, with plenty to share — though I didn't want to. The dozen bivalves served in the mussels pimentón ($14) were prepared in a smoky, paprika-infused wine-butter sauce. It was worth saving some of the bread from the complimentary bread and oil that appeared soon after we were seated to sop up the excellent sauce.

Three crisp wild mushroom empanadas ($13) with Manchego cheese, a sheep's milk cheese from Spain's La Mancha region, were enhanced with truffle oil. Empanadas are best when the pastry is crisp, plump with ingredients and piping hot, as they were here. The mushroom filling was earthy, aromatic and delicious.

The beef short rib adobo ($14) —Mexico City-style braised short rib with red onion-cilantro salad —was fork tender. An accompanying fresh corn arepa, a flat and round unleavened patty made from ground maize, helped soak up the tasty red adobo sauce.

As a side dish, we ordered the fresh corn and goat cheese arepa with red onion-tomato chutney ($6). It was smaller than a small plate, more like the typical size of tapas in Spain, and just as delicious.

For dessert, the tres leche cake ($8) was a light coconut-infused three milk cake decorated with fresh fruit salsa and a meringue topping. Bread pudding ($8) was made with fresh green apple, dried fruit, spices and drizzled with a bourbon caramel sauce and served with house-made vanilla ice cream. I don't think of bread pudding as being particularly Latin American, but it was good anyway.

The beverage list was excellent and reasonably priced, with specialty cocktails, mojitos, margaritas, caipirinhas (a popular Brazilian cocktail made with caçaca, sugar and lime) and sangrias. The wines were mostly from Spain, Chile and Argentina, with a few from California.

When I think of festive restaurants, enjoying a delightful evening with friends, sharing good food and trading stories, or just wanting a great place to eat well and affordably, I still default to Cascal. ▣

Jason Sudeikis voices the ever-ticked-off Red in 'The Angry Birds Movie.'

Seeing Red

'ANGRY BIRDS' NOW A BIG-SCREEN TIME WASTER

★★ 1/2 (Century 16 and 20)

Adults will have a hard time looking at Sony Animation's "The Angry Birds Movie"—based on the addictive, phenomenally popular video game—and not seeing it for what it is: the answer to a question no one asked. Well, movie studio executives obviously asked it: How do you make a movie out of "Angry Birds?"

In some ways, the answer provided by screenwriter Jon Vitti ("The Simpsons") and first-time feature directors Clay Kaytis and Fergal Reilly is kind of impressive as that riddle-solving exercise, with solutions that seem obvious in hindsight. Give that main red bird anger "issues," send him to "anger management," then send in the green pigs to catalyze a crisis that can only be solved by ... angry birds. Done, done and done: Roll credits.

Where the filmmakers win is by convincing people like me—by way of voice talent, wit, a nimble score (by Heitor Pereira), and vertiginous 3D action—that you can hate, or be indifferent to, "Angry Birds" the game and like, or even love, "The Angry Birds Movie."

On Bird Island—that "happy, happy community under the protection of Mighty Eagle"

(Peter Dinklage's "Oz"-like mythic figure)—flightless birds live mostly in harmony. Somehow, the terrain of Bird Island feels surprisingly fresh and (franchise-)fertile, even though adults will have seen all of these elements a million times before in different guises. The dynamic opening sequence finds hatch-day party clown Red (Jason Sudeikis) trying to save the cake he's delivering from destruction: old farts like me will think fondly of Wile E. Coyote, while kids will recognize the DNA of Scrat from "Ice Age." When Red opens his mouth to reveal the overgrown-fratboy stylings of Jason Sudeikis, we're launched into a mini-comedy drama that implies some psychological wisdom: His anger always makes things worse, destructively deepening his trouble on a personal level.

Ever-ticked-off Red (Sudeikis) winds up in an anger-management class taught by Maya Rudolph's Matilda and populated by hulking Terence (Sean Penn, if you can believe it), speedy Chuck (Josh Gad of "Frozen"), and volatile Bomb (Danny McBride, doing what sounds like his Seth Rogen impression). But even though "Anger is not always the answer," sometimes it has to be, or there's no movie, and here's where "The Angry Birds Movie" will divide audiences. When invasive green pig Leonard (Bill Hader) sails up and destroys Red's house, the film starts to legitimize Red's anger, and never stops.

It's doubtful most parents will do the work to brush the stars from their kids' eyes and explain the psychological nuances of the healthy channeling of anger, so this is somewhat risky business from a moral standpoint. But that's what it takes to fashion high-stakes adventure, as the hungry pigs steal the birds' eggs, necessitating a frantic, extended-climax rescue that will thrill kids while making them think twice about their next breakfast.

Surely no one needed to know, or care, that Red is angry because he was a friendless orphan, and it's especially unfortunate that females are so marginalized here, but as long as people are going to waste time on "Angry Birds," they may just as well do it this way.

Rated PG for rude humor and action. One hour, 37 minutes.

autodidact whose persistence won him a passage from East Indian obscurity to the University of Cambridge in 1913. Ramanujan soon meets his mentor, G.H. Hardy (Jeremy Irons), who helps to push forward the student's work as the befuddled Cambridge dons dismiss it out of racism or because of Ramanujan's habit of not showing work in proofs. Ramanujan's faith proffers a mystical contrast to Hardy's avowed atheism, but by reducing them to familiar archetypes, Brown relies on Irons' nuance and Patel's lack thereof to fill in the gaps. A more complex meeting of minds and souls and a deeper dive into the mathematics might have been much more interesting than the dully inspirational "The Man Who Knew Infinity." Rated PG-13 for some thematic elements and smoking. One hour, 48 minutes. — P.C.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:

ZENON MICHAEL SZALATA also known as ZENON MICHAEL SZALATA
Case No.: 1-16-PR-178768

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of ZENON MICHAEL SZALATA, also known as ZENON MICHAEL SZALATA.

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: JENNIFER SZALATA in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA. The Petition for Probate requests that: JENNIFER SZALATA be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.)

The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on July 6, 2016 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept.: 10 of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Clara, located at 191 N. First St., San Jose, CA, 95113.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58 (b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of ZENON M. SZALATA (aka ZENON MICHAEL SZALATA) (aka ZENON MICHAEL SZALATA).

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: MIRIAM SCHUSSLER in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA.

The Petition for Probate requests that: MIRIAM SCHUSSLER be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.)
