

Yayoi's novel approach

Japanese fast-casual dining chain comes to downtown Palo Alto

■ RESTAURANT REVIEW

Yayoi's decor is sparse: vertical wood slats on one wall, the other walls white, white and the only decoration is two small planter boxes in one corner. Tabletops are unadorned wood. Center tables are communal and side tables have dividers to break up the room. It's a clean look, sleek and utilitarian.

Yayoi's nanban teishoku is fried chicken coated in sweet-and-sour sauce, topped with tartar sauce and accompanied by a green salad.

Teriyaki salmon comes with stir-fried vegetables and, like all of Yayoi's dishes, sides of rice, miso soup and salad.

Yayoi features a spare, pared-down look to its dining room in downtown Palo Alto.

As the first U.S. restaurant from a multibillion-dollar Japanese chain, Yayoi Japanese Teishoku Restaurant on University Avenue in downtown Palo Alto is trendy, stylish and novel.

Teishoku (pronounced “tay-show-ku”) means set menu — a well-balanced meal consisting of miso soup, a main dish, rice, and a vegetable side, all served at the same time on a handsome lacquered tray.

At Yayoi, there are laminated menus to explain the food, though no waitstaff to take orders. Instead, guests order on tablets that are affixed to each table. It was easy to add on an item or beverage if one wanted something additional during the meal. When finished, a tap of the tablet and the bill is brought to the table.

No worry if the process seems daunting at first; there are plenty of servers to help out. Even low-tech me got the hang of it quickly. Because there is no waitstaff, just servers, the company has a no-tipping policy. If customers leave money, the restaurant donates it to local charities.

The menus offer photos of the dishes, available options and add-ons, and a section for appetizers that could have served as a la carte items. It's formula food, the portions carefully weighed and measured, though it was a positive sign that Yayoi was filled with Japanese patrons during each of my visits.

The miso katsu ($15.50) was a panko-encrusted, fork-tender pork cutlet simmered in a miso-based sauce. The soft-boiled egg on the side was intended to top the pork and mix with the rich miso sauce. It was a great flavor combination. The miso soup was tasty, as was the side of tofu with edamame and thinly sliced mushrooms in a sweet vinegary sauce. The side dishes rotate, but this was my favorite one.

The Kinmemai rice, imported from Japan, was moist and creamy with a slight nutty taste. Kinmemai rice is a proprietary product that claims to have nutritional qualities superior to ordinary white rice.

Hitsumabushi barbecued eel ($22) was served over noodles with condiments and dashi sauce on the side. The dish came with instructions on how to cut the eel and add the dashi and condiments. Dashi, made from dried kelp, dried and smoked tuna, anchovies and/or sardines, is frequently used in Japanese broths. The eel had a delicate flavor — not fishy, fatty or rubbery. The texture reminded me of tuna sashimi even though it was cooked.

I was perplexed by the nanban egg-coated fried chicken ($15.50) topped with sweet-and-sour sauce and tartar sauce. I thought perhaps something was lost in translation. Tartar sauce with fried chicken? Yes, it was tartar sauce all right, and it just didn't work for me. The chicken itself was nicely fried, crisp and moist. The sweet-and-sour sauce was barely detectable but the glob of tartar sauce I scraped aside.

The teriyaki salmon ($18.50) was stir-fried with vegetables, green salad and the requisite miso soup and rice. A dollop of Japanese mayonnaise was served on the side, mercifully. Why mayo with salmon, I have no idea. The salmon didn't taste particularly fresh, and while not overly disappointed, it was my least-favorite dish.

Yayoi has plenty of other options, including salads, beef, chicken, pork and fish teishoku plus salmon sashimi dishes.

At least half of the menu of specialty desserts weren't available on each of my visits. Ohagi ($5) was a steamed sticky rice ball with sweet red beans. I found it a little more slimy than sticky and cloyingly sweet.

More interesting and delicious was the matcha warabi mochi ($6), a dessert jelly made from bracken starch and coated with green tea powder. Bracken is a fern and the starch is painstakingly ground from the roots. A specialty of the Kansai region, it is reportedly a popular summertime treat in Japan.

As for drinks, there were 10 sakes available, plus a sake-tasting flight. Sakes and wines are sold by the glass, carafe or bottle. Beer, soft drinks and a selection of teas rounded out the beverage menu.

Yayoi is already a popular spot, and reservations are recommended even at lunch. Ordering by tablet is novel but I do miss having a waitperson who could yell to the kitchen, "Hold the mayo and tartar sauce." ▣

'CONJURING 2' SPINS ANOTHER GHOSTLY TALL TALE

★1/2 (Century 16 and 20)

"The Conjuring" franchise ships off to not-so-merrie old England in "The Conjuring 2: Enfield Poltergeist" where the latest victims of haunting speak in slightly more convincing working-class tones than Dick Van Dyke in "Mary Poppins." When there's somefin strange ... in your neighbor'ood...oo you gonna call? Ed and Lorraine Warren, of course: the real-life paranormal investigators played, again, by Patrick Wilson and Vera Farmiga.

Set in 1977, six years after the events of the first film, "The Conjuring 2" kicks off with a summarized version of the Warrens' best-known case: the New York state mass murder that inspired "The Amityville Horror." In her psychic crime-scene investigation, Lorraine runs into a creepy demon, a.k.a. "inhuman spirit," in nun drag. The encounter kicks off a ghost harassment that dovetails with the film's principal "based on the true story" plot: "the haunting of Enfield," a London borough.

The Hodgson family has unwelcome houseguest in 72-year-old Bill Wilkins (Bob Adrian), who died in a living room chair and wants his council home back to himself.

Despite a resolve to maintain a sabbatical, the Warrens yield to a request from the Catholic Church to go on a three-day fact-finding mission to London, where they meet with the sympathetic paranormal investigator Maurice Grosse (Simon McBurney) and the skeptical parapsychologist Anita Gregory (Franka Potente). Although "The Conjuring 2" includes most of the salient details about the case, it elaborates so manically that the film might as well be total fiction, which would give it moral high ground over this farce of a "true story."

Director James Wan demonstrates his impressive level of craft, with gliding camerawork and kinetic scares, but it's all in service of utter nonsense, a tired poltergeist narrative that clocks in at well past two hours.

Rated R for terror and horror violence. Two hours, 13 minutes.

'Now You' Don't

STARS REALIGN FOR DUMB SEQUEL 'NOW YOU SEE ME 2'

★1/2 (Century 16 and 20)

Not much has changed in the world of "Now You See Me 2." Though director Louis Letterier has been replaced by Jon M. Chu (born in Palo Alto, raised in Los Altos), the brief remains the same: "Ocean's 11" with magicians." Big stars, jazzy music, a lot of flash, almost no dazzle. The plot defies description — in fact, I wager half the cast couldn't explain it to you — but it again concerns the supposedly Robin Hood-esque band of magicians calling themselves "The Horsemen." Persistently slipping from the grasp of law enforcement, they expose or rob from the rich and sprinkle a bit on the poor on their way out.

The sequel shifts Mark Ruffalo's character, FBI double-agent Dylan Rhodes, to center stage, but this remains an ensemble property, featuring Jesse Eisenberg as self-styled ringleader J. Daniel Atlas, Woody Harrelson as hypnotist Merritt McKinney (and, this time, his twin brother!), Dave Franco as slight-of-hand whiz Jack Wilder and, filling a void left by Isla Fisher, Lizzy Caplan as sassy illusionist Lula. Magic debunker Thaddeus Bradley (Morgan Freeman) is still in the picture, as is treacherous tycoon Arthur Tressler (Michael Caine), not to mention Sanaa Lathan as Rhodes' FBI colleague and Daniel Radcliffe as a dorky rival to the Horsemen.

Admittedly, that's a lot of acting talent to throw at a picture, and it's the reason to see the redundant "Now You See Me 2," if any (who doesn't want to see Ruffalo get his Jackie Chan on for three minutes?). Because the rest is pointless sound and fury: Not only can the center not hold, but there is no center to begin with. While carrying out deeply unrealistic scams, the characters behave stupidly in a far-from-airtight plot, and it doesn't help that the heroes are smug criminals sticking it to even worse criminals.

The largest problem still facing this franchise is that magic on screen can't impress us in the least when do-anything with computer-generated special effects is so plentiful. Mostly, the best "Now You See Me 2" has to offer regarding magic is dumb epigrams like "Seeing is believing, but is it truth?" Thank you, Morgan Freeman. Can we go home now?

Rated PG-13 for violence and some language. Two hours, 9 minutes.

AMENDED
NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
MARGARET SILVEIRA

Case No.: 1-16-PR 178817
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of MARGARET SILVEIRA. A Petition for Probate has been filed by: MARY MEDLAND in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA. The Petition for Probate requests that: MARY MEDLAND be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on July 13, 2016 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept.: 10 of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Clara, located at 191 N. First St., San Jose, CA, 95113. If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58 (b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

BETTY JEAN DRURY

Case No.: 1-16-PR-178294
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of BETTY JEAN DRURY. A Petition for Probate has been filed by: JAMES J. RAMONI, Public Administrator of Santa Clara County in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA.

The Petition for Probate requests that: JAMES J. RAMONI, Public Administrator of Santa Clara County be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on July 22, 2016 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept.: 10 of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Clara, located at 191 N. First St., San Jose, CA, 95113. If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing.
