Rosé-colored glasses

LOCAL WINE EXPERTS
ADORE THE APPROACHABLE AND ALLURING PINK WINE

Story by Elena Kadvany | Photos by Michelle Le

It's hard to imagine a time when rosé did not have the near-cult popularity it enjoys today. Bottles fly off wine shops' shelves the moment the sun comes out. Festivals have been created in its honor. Hip-hop artists celebrate the pink wine in their songs, while hashtags like "roséallday" and "yeswayrosé" have gone viral on social media.

But in the 1980s, when Vin Vino Wine first opened in Palo Alto, no matter what owner Victor Pugliese did to spread the rosé gospel, the wine's clientele was almost exclusively limited to people who drank the wine in France, where rosé was popularized. A too-sweet white zinfandel mass-produced by Sutter Home gave rosé a bad rap, Pugliese said.

It wasn't until the early 2000s that the rosé tide began to change. As it increased in popularity, more wineries outside of France began making more—and better—rosé, Pugliese said.

Today, the alluringly fresh, uplifting pink wine is enjoyed by wine connoisseurs and Instagrammers alike.

"What I love about both drinking and selling rosé is there's a lack of pretension," Pugliese said. "You really don't need to spend a lot of money for a good rosé. You shouldn't age it. You should just buy it and drink it. It's very uncomplicated."

Rosé is essentially a red wine. It's made from red grapes, but instead of leaving the grape skins in contact with the juice for an extended period of time, which creates more flavor, color and tannin, winemakers take rosé out in a "matter of hours," Pugliese said. This results in a structure, or acidity, more similar to white wine, he explained. The majority of rosés are made through this process, known as maceration.

There are two other methods for making rosé, said Erika Szot, sommelier for Chez TJ in Mountain View. One, usually limited to high-quality production, is called saignée. Winemakers bleed a certain percentage of grape juice off after limited contact with the skins, and the bled-off juice becomes the rosé.

The third method is blending, adding a small amount of red wine to a white wine to get the classic rosé color. Blending is usually limited to making sparkling rosés, Szot said.

When buying or ordering rosés, let the grape varietal guide you, she said.

"If you have a Sangiovese as the base or a cabernet sauvignon or even pinot noir, they'll have completely different flavors and smells," Szot said.

As with all wines, rosé made in different regions have distinguishing characteristics. French rosés tend to be lower in alcohol content, Pugliese said, "which makes them more drinkable, less ponderous — and that's what rosé should be." French rosé will almost never be sweet, he said.

California rosés tend to be light and crisp compared to Italian ones with more body and depth, said Ceri Smith, owner of Palo Alto's Biondivino Wine Boutique, which focuses on Italian and Eastern European wines.

"California has, in general, across the board in their wines ... more fruit, more bright, New World kind of flavors. The Italians have more acidity, more earth, (more) Old World kind of flavors," she said. She's currently "geeking out" over an all-natural, slightly fizzy and "funky" Italian rosé, a 2015 Macciocca Passerina Frusinate Rosato ($20)

It's a French rosé, however, that Smith can hardly keep stocked: a 2015 Domaine les Luquettes Bandol Rose ($25). Another customer favorite is the 2015 Chateau Pradeaux Bandol Rose ($38).

An array of rosé is available at Vin Vino Wine in Palo Alto. The color of a rosé can give a hint about the bottle's flavor.

One of Smith's favorites is the Chateau Simone Palette — “goose-bump good” but, admittedly, at much higher price point ($73).

Color can also be a flavor guide, but not a hard-line one, Smith said. Lighter-hued rosés do tend to be leaner, but there are some darker ones that can still taste light, she said.

A 2016 Austrian rosé, Schlosskellerei Gobelsburg Cistercien ($18) that just came into Vin Vino Wine, is a current favorite of Pugliese's: “very light, delicate, fresh ... and moderately priced.”

Unlike its red and white counterparts, rosé's drinkability means it goes well with just about any meal. At Chez TJ, Szot pairs rosé with everything from asparagus and root vegetables to salmon, lamb and sashimi. She's served a 2014 Clos Cibonne rosé from Provence ($80) with lamb and juniper as well as caviar, but said it would work just as well as a “porch drink” with a barbecue menu like burgers, potato chips and watermelon. Rosé also goes well with anything that has fennel, she said.

“The pairing opportunities for rosé are endless,” Szot said.

Despite rosé's warm-weather popularity, Szot and Smith make the case for drinking it year-round.

“I know it's refreshing and finally sunny outside so everyone wants it now, but it truly is in our opinion a necessity to have in the cellar year-round,” Szot said. “We're trying to break that notion that rosé is only for the spring.”

French rosé tends to be lower in alcohol and is rarely sweet.

Summer Class Guide

With summer right around the corner, the possibilities seem endless, just like the length of those long, long days. With seemingly more time, and quite possibly more energy, the time is ripe for trying your hand at something new and exciting or finessing a talent you never knew you had. Who knows? You might learn something new about yourself along the way — maybe you'll discover your inner dancer or learn that, actually, you can do a headstand in that yoga class. The skies (dances, yoga poses and other metaphorical horizons) are the limit, which of course means that there is no ceiling to your own personal growth. Indeed, this could be the start of something new for you!

The Class Guide is published quarterly by the Palo Alto Weekly, The Almanac and the Mountain View Voice.

'KING ARTHUR' RETELLS THE LEGEND FOR THE AGE OF FRANCHISES

★★ (Century 16 & 20)

That most flexible of ancient legends gets a new workout in Guy Ritchie's "King Arthur: Legend of the Sword," the first in what's rumored to be a six-film series (box-office willing). Certainly, this is the first version of the King Arthur story to feature a character referred to as "Kung Fu George" or a David Beckham cameo, but let's just say Ritchie's take on Arthurian legend isn't going to surprise anyone who knows what's up at the multiplex these days.

A dedicated stylist who got his start with gangster comedies like "Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels" and "Snatch," Ritchie has become a go-to guy for Warner Brothers' franchise hopes, first with "Sherlock Holmes" (a hit that spawned a sequel) and then with "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." (a flop). And so we get a "King Arthur" in which the displaced royal — cast off Moses-like after the murder of his parents — grows up thinking he's "the bastard son of a prostitute," raised in a Londinium brothel to become a gangster with a crew. In Ritchie's neatest stylistic trick, Arthur's 20-year journey from boy to man (Charlie Hunnam, who's serviceable when he doesn't succumb to shouty mode) takes about two minutes of screen time in a super-charged montage.

That's after a prologue that promises an awful, awe-full lot of spectacle, first with a massive conflagration pitting the supernatural might of mage sorcerer Mordred against the otherwise peaceful kingdom of Arthur's dad, Uther Pendragon (Eric Bana), and then with the palace coup of villainous Vortigern (Jude Law, Ritchie's Dr. Watson), enabled by a Faustian deal with a triad of witches. Essentially, Law's doing a pared-down "Macbeth" in the margins of this movie, and almost making something of the thin scripting through his Shakespearean enthusiasms.

Mostly, though, "Legend of the Sword" feels like a rather desperate attempt — in design, music, and even casting — to score some of that sweet, sweet "Game of Thrones" cash. And since "Batman Begins" remains the template for origin-story reboots, "Legend of the Sword" doubles down on traumatized boys and gives Arthur martial-arts training sourced from the Far East (around the climax, Ritchie whips up some special-effects-enhanced sword fu).

There's the Sword in the Stone

(Excalibur, as usual), the Lady in the Lake, a formidable and fetching female mage (Astrid Bergès-Frisbey), and multiple bad-dream and vision-quest flashbacks as Arthur reckons with his once and future destinies, all culminating in a video-gamey showdown that wipes away the movie's best actor (Law) and replaces him with a digital demon. Ritchie's "Arthur" is more likely to be remembered for the crime-comedy touches he and co-writers Joby Harold and Lionel Wigram have stamped onto it: knockabout "Lock, Stock"-style dialogues, a campaign planned like a heist, a "safe house" (though sensible, the phrase has an anachronistic ring).

Despite some striking visuals (including sweeping use of Welsh and Scottish locations) and the occasional evocation of "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves," this newfangled "Arthur" comes up short on grandeur or even old-fashioned matinee adventure, trading them in for cosmetic "Game of Thrones" grot.

Rated PG-13 for sequences of violence and action, some suggestive content and brief strong language. Two hours, 6 minutes.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
BARBARA C. MOORE aka BARBARA CAROL MOORE
Case No.: 17PR180968
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of BARBARA C. MOORE aka BARBARA CAROL MOORE.
A Petition for Probate has been filed by: SARAH MOORE in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA.
The Petition for Probate requests that: SARAH MOORE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held on June 29, 2017 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept.: 12 of the Superior Court of California, County of Santa Clara, located at 191 N. First St., San Jose, CA, 95113.
If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58 (b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor.
You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

SUMMONS
(CITACION JUDICIAL)

Case No.: MC026882

NOTICE TO DEFENDANT:
(AVISO AL DEMANDADO):
Crownland Corporation; and DOES 1 through 11, inclusive

YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAINTIFF:
(LO ESTA DEMANDANDO EL DEMANDANTE):

Tasso Pattas and Soula Pattas

NOTICE! You have been sued. The court may decide against you without your being heard unless you respond within 30 days. Read the information below. You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court.

There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association. NOTE: The court has a statutory lien for waived fees and cost on any settlement or arbitration award of $10,000 or more in a civil case. The court's lien must be paid before the court will dismiss the case.
AVISO! Lo han demandado. Si no responde dentro de 30 días, la corte puede decidir en su contra sin escuchar su versión. Lea la información a continuación.
Tiene 30 DIAS DE CALENDARIO despues de que le entreguen esta citacion y papeles legales para presentar una respuesta por escrito en esta corte y hacer que se entregue una copia al demandante. Una carta o una llamada telefonica no lo protegen. Su respuesta por escrito tiene que estar en formato legal correcto si desea que procesen su caso en la corte. Es posible que haya un formulario que usted pueda usar para su respuesta. Puede encontrar estos formularios de la corte y mas informacion en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California (www.sucorte.ca.gov), en la biblioteca de leyes de su condado o en la corte que le quede mas cerca. Si no puede pagar la cuota de presentacion, pida al secretario de la corte que le de un formulario de exencion de pago de cuotas. Si no presenta su respuesta a tiempo, puede perder el caso por incumplimiento y la corte le podra quitar su sueldo, dinero y bienes sin mas advertencia.

Hay otros requisitos legales. Es recomendable que llame a un abogado inmediatamente. Si no conoce a un abogado, puede llamar a un servicio de remision a abogados. Si no puede pagar a un abogado, es posible que cumpla con los requisitos para obtener servicios legales gratuitos de un programa de servicios legales sin fines de lucro. Puede encontrar estos grupos sin fines de lucro en el sitio web de California Legal Services, (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California, (www.sucorte.ca.gov) o poniendose en contacto con la corte o el colegio de abogados locales. AVISO: Por ley, la corte tiene derecho a reclamar las cuotas y los costos exentos por imponer un gravamen sobre cualquier recuperacion de $10,000 o mas de valor recibida mediante un acuerdo o una concesion de arbitraje en un caso de derecho civil, Tiene que pagar el gravamen de la corte antes de que la corte pueda desecher el caso.
